Thinking Out Loud

H. M. L.

The Old Timer sometimes ponders the deeper meanings of life. In general he inclines to a practical view, however, and even when he is meditating on the "deeper meanings", usually he finds a practical application for his abstract musing. Thus the other day, apparently suffering from a rare attack of old fashioned "heart burn," he discussed at some length the effect of bad cooking on civilization and the role it has played in some of the world's historical catastrophies. His maunderings on the subject were easily traceable to disturbed conditions in the digestive tract and incident repercussions in the brain cavity.

"As certain as I sit here," he said explosively, "history will prove that Josephine was a poor cook, brought up in the West Indies with a lot of slaves to attend her, so that she didn't even know her way around in a kitchen, and, that Napoleon divorced her and married the thrifty Hapsburg princess, Maria Louisa, because she had been brought up to cook properly. I contend that had Napoleon made this shift earlier his empire might have been saved by Maria's good cooking, which the French venerate above military glory, and that today the world would not be troubled by two such dictators as Mussolini and Hitler. The French would have yielded a double allegiance to his wife's cooking and Little Corporal's generalship. It would have been an unbeatable team. if only Napoleon had made the play, from Josephine to Maria, earlier in the game.

"And today I believe democracy is safe, without a cannon or a fire cracker, so long as women will learn to cook well. Men won't defend a boarding house in time of war. Nor will any man put his heart into a fight to save a home in which there is a bird witted wife who can't cook. Napoleon remarked that his soldiers marched on their bellies. I go further. I say nations rise and fall on their bellies.

"There are two classes of married men in this great democracy of ours. Those who choose their wives and those who are chosen by their wives. As long as the former are in a substantial majority, we shall not have communism or fascism or anything but democracy. The man who chooses his wife uses judgment and instinct. His judgment has to do with her various charms. His instinct tells him whether the girl will develop into a competent housekeeper and cook. Men and families of this kind are the nation's back bone.

"On the other hand, what happens when men are chosen in matrimony instead of choosing. I have in mind a parable that illustrates the situation. A certain girl, very attractive so far as physical beauty goes, realizes that she will never cook, is determined in fact that she will not cook. She does not regard it as an art, but as a kind of slavery. But she is determined on landing a man nevertheless. So she equips herself with a rod and tackle and goes out on the Stream of Life and begins to fish.

"First she takes from her fly book, we'll say a charming little fly called "slim ankles." She casts it out near the big boulder where the beautiful, big, trout is, and sees a little swirl out there. The trout has risen and given the fly a casual inspection and returned to his lair. There are lots of slim ankles in the world and he's fed up with them. She casts one fly after another, personal charms, lovely shimmering hair, a beautiful hand, etc., from her fly book, with no strike, though there is an occasional rise, but finally she bends on her leader a fly called "languishing eyes," there is swirl and a big fellow strikes. He makes an awful fight, but she brings him in speedily hand over hand. His instinct failed him. Poor fish.

"Leaving the parable for the realities. Three months after the landing and the marriage. Here's the poor fellow, his little red lane already turning a billious yellow, sitting down to the evening meal. The biscuits. Oh! Great Jehovah! But leave them out of this. Biscuits are overdone figuratively and literally. But the soup, the poor devil gets the aroma of the soup and gently offers it to the cocker spaniel they got as a wedding present. The cocker wags his tail, sniffs and shakes his head. And the meat. It needs predigesting with a jackhammer. And the pie. Dante forgot to leave a corner in his Inferno for brides condemned forever to eat their own pie. Thus the young husband turns piteously away from the table, empty and desperate. As time goes on, he speaks sharply about his food, or rather I should say, a demon, a demon in his gastromic region takes control of him and gives the poor excuse he married a berating. She flies to Reno. There is a divorce. Incompatability.

"The sequel is terrible. Racked by his ruined digestion he joins the communists. She goes on from one matrimonial failure to another, leaving a wake of ruined manhood and citizenship behind her. Even those that recover, are never completely themselves, for whenever they think of that woman their gastric juices bubble and hiss. And so when you hear a newly married man say to his bride after a few weeks or months of wedded life: "Darling, let's eat out tonight," you will know that romance is ended and dyspepsia has begun."

STORIED RAMPARTS OF WORLD'S FAIR

AUTOPSY PROVES LAKE SWIMMER WAS DROWNED

An autopsy performed on the body of Kenneth Dale Harness, who died Monday night shortly before 9 o'clock while swimming in Lake Vera, proved that he died of immersion. The deceased was born in Ohio 31 years ago and had lived in California 27 years and in Nevada City for the past three months.

A son, Dale Harness of San Jose, 11 years old, his mother, Mrs. Mae McNab of Sacramento, a sister Mrs. Ernest Field, also of Sacramento, and a brother Gerald Harness of San Francisco, survive him.

The body was conveyed by Coroner J. R. Jefford to Sacramento where funeral services were held.

Harness in company with Mr. and Mrs. Claude Burnette of this city had gone to Lake Vera. Stripping off his clothes in the car, he plunged into the lake and after a few strokes called out in distress, "Lights, Lights!" The car lights were turnen on, and Tom Hogan and Tom Legg of this city who happened to be at the lake, jumped in and brought Harness ashore. Dr. W. W. Reed was summoned and accompanied by Rollo Wright arrived there about fifteen minutes after the accident. A pulmotor from the Empire mine arrived later, but all attempts to resuscitate the unfortunate young man failed.

VALLEY MINES

A test run has been made in the 75 ton mill on the St. Louis property in the Valley Mines group in Willow Valley. Leasors ore which has been stored for several months, will be treated as the mill is put in smooth running condition and after that it will treat ore as mined intermittently.

G. V. POLICE RESIGN

Police Officers Charles Henwood and James Truan submitted their resignations at the meeting of the Grass Valley city council Wednesday night. Truan, who was appointed a city officer on July 1, gave no reason for resigning, Henwood, on the force for the last six months, said he was going back to work in a local mine.

ROTARY HEARS TWO TRAVELERS

Two short addresses interested the Rotary club at their luncheon yesterday in the National Hotel. Dr. H. P. Meinecke, under whose direction the campaign against enemies of the forests in the national reserves, parks and monnments is waged, described a recent examination tour he had made of the Navajo Indian reservation in Arizona. Earl Covey, manager of J. C. Penney Co., in Grass Valley, gave a vivid descriptinn of three or four points of interest on his recent trip to Nice where he attended the International Rotary convention.

Dr. Meinecke told of riding a part of this country which is really still wild, untouched or unretouched by the hand of man. His guide was an Indian who could not speak a word of English. The roads he traveled were called roads by courtesy only. Nature in this desert and forest area had carved the red sandstones into curious shapes. Towers rose from the level desert in beautiful colors. These towers, according to Dr. Meinecke had been formed first by cloud bursts of Titanic force and volume, and then through the ages gradually sanded into shape by the desert wind storms. He visited a trading center in the Navajo country the postoffice of which was 185 miles from the nearest railroad, further in fact than any other postoffice in the United States from a railroad.

The Roma, the ship which carried most of the Rotarians of the United States to the International convention in Nice, made its first stop at the Madeira islands near the equator, Mr. Covey said. He was impressed with the gorgeous flowers. The islands are near the equator. The city and port visited was Funchal and the Rotary club there gave the Rotarians a splendid reception at the encina, a dinner and dance and most hospitable entertainment. Beggars made life miserable. Covey stated, until the visitors became hardboiled and refused to notice them. In the big plaza beautiful orchids were growing. The guests were taken to the top of the mountain, over 3,000 feet high which dominates Funchal, on a steeply inclined railway which rises that height in five miles.

Next they visited Casa Blanca in French Morocco. There, Covey stated, he saw the new part of that ancient stronghold of the Moorish pirates. On this new section the Frnech have expended millions of dollars. He declared that this had all been built since 1912, and is far more modern than anything of its kind in the United States. "That is where some of the money that should have been used to repay the French war debt, has been spent," the speaker said.

Beside the new and modern part of the city are two other sections, one occupied by the Jews and the other by the Arabs. In the latter is the underworld of the Arab. Merchants do business in holes in the wall. Meats and fruits are exposed and covered with flies. Probably ten per cent of the Arabs are suffering from eye infection.

The Sultan of all Mohammedans resides in Algiers and maintains a castle there, one legal wife and 300 concubines. He is permitted a small contingent of soldiers in bright uniforms but has no authority of political influence save in matters pertaining to religion.

Mr. Covey said that he was most impressed during his trip with England and promised on another occasion to give the Rotary club a sketch of his experiences there.

CIO AND AFL DEADLOCKED IN BOCA LABOR ROW

A contingent of fifty workmen enroute to the Boca dam site, under the impression apparently that they would receive protection in entering the labor camp maintained at Boca, halted at the state quaranine station two miles east of Truckee Wednesday, apparently to wait for guards to see them safely into their quarters at Boca.

Deputy Sheriff Tom Dolly explained the situation to Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen when the latter arrived at Truckee, and the sheriff promptly refused to have anything to do with the matter. He stated that his sole duty was to see that both the CIO union which held the fort, or rather the bunk houses, at the dam site, and the AFL new comers hired to take their places on the dam project, kept the peace. It was not, he declared a part of his duty to escort one labor faction into premises, in possession of another faction. Dolly conveyed this information to the waiting group at the quarantine station with the result that most of them returnto Sacramento and San Francisco.

There was, however, an incipient riot at the plant when one small group of AFL members attempted to enter. One man was hit with a rock, despite CIO assurances that their pickets would do no violence.

The Condon company, Sheriff Tobiassen states, at any time can come into the Nevada County Supeior Court, plead that their property is under unlawful detainer and ask for an eviction order. If this were granted, the sheriff states, he would carry out the order of the court. But thus far the company has made no such attempt.

It is understood that company has several contracts on which the men employed by them are unionized under the AFL and that it is expected ultimately to organize under AFL the men who will complete the work on the Boca dam. In the meantime the CIO have filed a complaint against the company with the Labor Board, charging violation of the Wagner act. CIO pickets declare they will allow no visitors on the premises unless they carry passes, presumably issued by CIO officials.

COUNTY TAXES SUPPORT MANY FUNCTIONS

A bulletin listing and classifying the more than eighty separate functions of county government was issued early this week by the California State Chamber of Commerce, to be used as a guide by taxpayers in studying the budgets now being prepared in the 58 counties of the state.

The classification is in accordance with the new uniform setup as adopted by the legislature at its last session, and which is now being used by county officers in preparing the next year's budget.

Preliminary budgets have already been prepared, and hearings are now being held by the boards of supervisors to secure the views of all citizens for final adoption, which will be in the course of the next month or six weeks.

The general classifications are: General Government, Protection to Persons and Property, Health and Sanitation, Highways and Bridges, Charities and Corrections, Education, Recreation, and Miscellaneous. These classifications are further broken down into over eighty items.

Wyoming Tribe of Red Men of Nevada City are going to Forest City Saturday evening where an adoption degree is to be held. An orchestra will furnish music for the dance after the meeting.

Ben Tamblyn has returned from a visit with his sister, Mrs. V. Shattuck, and Mr. Shattuck in Truckee.

MURCHIE TEAM LEADS IN GOLD LEAGUE

The Murchie mine baseball team of Nevada City played the Empire mine nine of Grass Valley on Pioneers Park diamond Wednesday evening winning by a 16 to 2 score. The most sensational play of the game was when Dick Stevens made four good catches in center field. Jack Cuffman pitched for the Murchie boys Wednesday evening and Danivan was catcher.

There are six teams in the Gold League. The Murchie team leads the league series and Wednesday evening's game gave the Murchie nine, seven wins and no losses.

The Lava Cap baseball team of Nevada City is in second place. Unforttunately the games with the Idaho-Maryland and North Star mines of Grass Valley were cancelled on account of ineligible players, it is stated.

Next Sunday afternoon the Lava Cap team will play the Murchie nine on Pioneers Park diamond at Nevada City. A splendid game is anticipated, the Lava Caps in second are playing a decisive game with the Murchies who lead the field. Rich Wakefield, who pitched the American Legion team of Sacramento into the champs of 1935, is pitching for the Lava Cap boys.

CAR GETS LOOSE

The car of Fred Deverley, Jr., of Alleghany, created some excitement Tuesday afternoon when it ran away from its parking place in front of the Alpha Stores in this city, and crashed into the back of a drummer's car down and across the street, damaging both cars. Deverley, who had gone down to the Plaza did not set his brakes tight enough and the machine slipped and traveled slowly in a zig-zag manner. Luckily both drivers were insured.

NINETY BOYS AT CAMP PAHATSI

The first week of scout camp closed and another week opened last Sunday at Kilborn Lake with almost the same number in camp each week, 93 and 90 respecttively. Many of the scouts registered only for the first week remained for the second. Since camp opened this summer 600 people have visited it in addition to the campers.

Three scouts were presented Tenderfoot, five Second Class and three First Class, two Star rank, and seventeen were awarded Merit Badges at Saturday's Court of Honor. An Eagle scout award was presented to Robert Keeny of Grass Valley.

The overnight camps were close to camp and the bean hole cooking was well done. "Emergency rations" were on hand however. Campfire programs have featured dramatics with "radio broadcasts,' amateur night. and melodramas.

The interest in handicraft this year has "swamped" the five instructors so great has been the demand.

A miniature baseball bat was presented Robert Vincent in recognition of his being the player of greatest value to his team.

Although next week August 1 to 8 was primarily for Cubs, there has been a demand from scouts to attend camp the third week so scout camp applications are being accepted. A scout program will be conducted independent of the cub program.

The five day hikers will make the trip to the Royal Gorge of the American river under the direction of M. S. Beecher leaving camp Monday morning and returning Friday afternoon.

Cub camp at Camp Pahatsi will open Sunday, August 1 and continue for one week.

A majority of the present camp staff will continue but the program will be changed to suit the cub activity. Health examination blanks have been mailed to all cubs registered to date.

Mrs. Irma Weeks and son, Clifford of Auburn are spending a week in Nevada City visiting Mrs. Weeks' parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ghidotti and other relatives.

Predict Boom If Surtax Is Removed

A great expansion among manufacturing concerns and increased employment is predicted if terms of the Federal surtax on corporate earnings can be modified, according to hundreds of letters received by the California State Chamber of Commerce from its member firms.

The Chamber recently asked its members throughout the state to report the effects of the present surtax on corporate earnings on their own business operations. Copies of these letters which have been forwarded to California's congressmen indicate an almost unanimous belief on the part of manufacturers, engineering and construction firms and financial institutions that if present provisions of the law could be amended to permit exemption for necessary surpluses withheld from earnings for needed expansions, tremendous business activity and new employment would be created by the demand for increased inventories, plant expansion, and needed new equipment.

The State Chamber has just published a report analyzing the Federal act, and is leading the fight on the part of California business for immediate modification of the law.

Browsing With The Bookworm

If you like vivid descriptiveness, "ghouls and ghosties." history, travel, legend and adventure, by all means read Voodoo Fires in Haiti, by Richard A. Loderer, published by the Literary Guild, New York, and illustrated with a series of brilliant wood cuts by the author.

Here is a book vivid as a poinsettia. Mr. Loederer is as gifted an author as he is an artist .He traveled all over Haiti, delving into the history of the island, the superstitions and habits of its polychrome natives.

Some parts of the book are almost nauseous, and other parts are pen pictures of beauty and grandeur. His chapter on the wicked King Christophe is history in its most amazing form. History of a primeval genius and his unconquerable ambitions. A black barbarian who's death was as lonely and friendless as his birth, but who left in his famous Citadel La Ferriere, a monument that leaves one, even today, appalled.

The horror of voodoo rituals, the treacherous beauty of the jungle, the "miasmic swamps," Haiti as she was in the dim, dim past, as she is today, all presented with infinite artistry by a man who wrote of what he saw on the spot, and not in retrospect.

Jumping from Voodoo Fires in Haiti to Rupert Brooke is a long leap and perhaps an injudicious one, but after the emotional upheavals one is apt to experience while reading Mr. Loederer's book, Rupert Brooke becomes the cool quiet stream below the roaring falls.

Needless for me to review the works of a poet so well known, or to further sing his praises, for his fame will never die, but for those who know him chiefly for his poignant sonnet The Soldier (associated with his name in much the same manner that Trees recalls Joyce Kilmer,) there are so many poems in the slim collection his early death left us, of such heartrending beauty I cannot refrain from reminding you of them.

Foremost of these is The Voice with that lovely simle and unforgettable line. "And no wind was blowing—" and Failure that starts:—

"Because God put His adamatine
Between my sullen heart and its desire—"
and ends:—
"An idle wind blew round an empty throne
And stirred the heavy curtains on the wall".

A poem of such force and beauty as to leave one breathless. Then there are those poems in which the realist leaps out, Wagner, Menelaus and Helen and Dead Men's Love. Rupert Brookes' Poems and 1914 and Other Poems are slim little volumes that slip into one's pocket. Little books that can be picked up at odd moments—little books—but filled with a truth and beauty as large and lasting as eternity.

WARNING GIVEN JEFFORD & SON

The State Board of Funeral Directors and Embalmers held a session at the Bret Harte Hotel, Grass Valley, Monday. The board members present were:

J. R. Keaton, San Rafael, Wm. C. Hammersmith, San Francisco, J. J. Mottell, Long Beach, M. Newton Howell, Glendale, Harrie Stewart, representative of the board, and Frank J. Barry, attorney for the board, were also in attendance. A. M. Holmes, secretary and Grass Valley member of the board, was present, but did not articipate in the board's deliberations.

The principal matters to come before the board were the complaints involving W. R. Jefford & Son, local funeral directors. Merritt N. Smith, a former deputy coroner of Nevada county, was one of the witnesses called before the board in connection with said complaints. The outcome of the board's investigation of the matter was to order the files and the transcript of the testimony of witnesses filed in the Sacramento office, it being the opinion of the board members that while the evidence tends to show violations of the funeral directors and embalmers law of the state, a formal prosecution would not be undertaken at this time, but that W. R. Jefford & Son should be warned and that the record made may be used by the board in case of any future complaints. The records of the board show that this is the second instance in which a warning has been thus issued by the board to W. R. Jefford & Son.

The board adjourned to meet at Lakeport, where complaints against the Russell Funeral Home are to come up for hearing July 27.

MORE BOYS MAY ENROLL IN CCC

There is now an opportunity for young men to enroll in the CCC who could not do so before according to DeWitt Nelson, forest supervisor, at Nevada City. He states that he has just received word that five hundred young men may be enrolled in the state of California regardless of county quotas. Heretofore, each county has had a quota to which it was limited but under the new ruling all qualified young men will be enrolled until the additional quota of five hundred for the state is filled.

Thousands of young men all over the state have been on the waiting list for enrollment hoping that the relief stipulation would be removed. It has been removed effective July 1 and any young man between the ages of 17 to 23, inclusive, of good character and in good health, is eligible for enrollment if he needs work. This does not mean either, Nelson says, that he must be in destitute circumstances.

"In my opinion," Nelson says, "there is nothing better a young man just out of high school could do than spend six months in the Civilian Conservation Corps. Even if he planned to enter college, I believe it would pay him to postpone entrance one semester in order to have this experience. After four years of high school, he needs a breathing spell and this would give him six months to renew physical vigor and lay up a reserve of stamina carrying him through his college years. Also, working in actual contact with natural resources, soil, trees, etc., learning to use hand tools, to operate construction equipment and coordinate mind and muscle, does something to the character that is hard to explain but helps the young man no matter what trade or profession he decides to adopt whether it be bulldozer operator or banker, logger or lawyer. In the forest service, we like to get men who have had a full university course in scientific forestry but further we like to get those who have had some years on a ranch or in the woods. Given two men, one born and raised in the city and the other either born on a ranch or having had several years experience there or in the woods, the city boy will lose out every time. He is not as adaptable, not as resourceful as the farm boy. His sphere has been narrower; he cannot so well figure out his own problems and surmount obstacles.

"In filling our short term protective positions, we select young men from the corps whenever possible since we know they are better adapted on the average to carry on the work and will learn it more quickly. This season over 50 per cent of such positions are filled by CCC's. Only last week, I had the pleasure of appointing a young man from the Tahoe Ukiah camp as our tank truck driver at $125 a month. All his experience in truck driving, operation of water pumps, and auto mechanics, had been learned while a member of the corps. Private employers are coming to realize the value of this experience too as we learn from letters received by project superintendents from former enrolees who have secured outside employment.

"Young men intending to go to college need not fear that their mental faculties will atrophy since the educational program inaugurated in the CCC has been intensified in the new bill by the setting aside of a portion of each work day to educational purposes. There is an educational adviser in each camp selected from the field of learning in order to supervise the classes. Not all is classroom work but there is considerable vocational training on the job.

"I can unhesitatingly recommend that any young man who is interested see the nearest enrolling officer before July 31. Enrollment for the present period will close on that date."

CALIFORNIA 500 CCC QUOTA CLOSES JULY 31

July 31 is the deadline for enrollment of the 500 quota which has been open to California youth. Under the new ruling the enrollment may be made from any part of California until the five hundred quota has been filled. The relief stipulation on the CCC enrollees has been removed and any young man between the ages of 17 to 23 inclusive, of good character is eligible if he needs work. It does not mean that he need be destitute. Any young man wishing to enroll should make application before Saturday, July 31 at the nearest enrolling office. The Nevada County headquarters for enrollment is the Tahoe National Forest Service office on Pine street, Nevada City.

FLEURY HEARING TODAY ON RAPE ATTEMPT CHARGE

Russell Fleury, who on Saturday is alleged to have driven Mrs. S. H. Bennett in the Bennett car against her will on the Lake Vera road and attempted to assault her, must answer to a charge of attempted rape. District Attorney Vernon Stoll has changed the original charge, on which he was arrested from the misdemeanor of assault, to the above felony charge. He will have his preliminary hearing this afternoon before Police Judge Miles Coughlin, sitting for Justice of the Peave Walter Mobley, who is ill.

S. H. Bennett who signed the original complaint, states that Fleury came to his home on Grove street for a shower bath, and after having enjoyed this hospitality, requested something to eat. At Bennett's suggestion his wife drove him down town, and after lunching at a restaurant, she got into the car expecting t obe driven home. Instead Fleury drove her out toward Lake Vera, where he beat her in the car and ripped her slacks nad other clothing. She screamed continually for help, whereupon Fleury jumped out of the car declaring he knew a way to stop her screaming and apparently intended to go around to her side of the car and drag her out, but in getting out he sprained his ankle. Finally he drove her back to her home and then drove off with the car.

He was arrested at his home in Grass Valley Sunday morning. He is a big burley man weighing over 200 pounds. He offered no resistance to the officers.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder why my little cat
Sits down and stares at me,
As though my past and future years
His yellow eyes could see.
Of course I am "superior"
To him and all his kind,
But he does things which baffles me
With his "inferior" mind.

I wonder at the sagacity displayed by many inferior creatures, whose uncanny instincts and intuitions puzzle and confound my own superior intelligence. Our yellow cat passes many mental tests which would confuse and bewilder us if the situations were reversed. For example; when his mistress attired in a white gown and with features au natural, absents herself from the room to return after the lapse of an hour or so wearing a frock of another color and several layers of make up, he is not in the least disconcerted. With a "meow" of approval he springs into her lap, his confidence unshaken by her so changed appearance.

Now, if he should suddenly come before her in a coat of prime black fur, the lady would wield a broom and cry excitedly, "Scat! get out! Whose cat are you anyway!

Are his powers of discernment greater than hers? Let none but the wariest of diplomats reply.

I wonder what became of the man who said, "butterflies live but a day." Had he never heard of the monarch butterflies of the Sierras? Of course he had never witnessed one of their migratory flights; a cloud of fluttering wings above the streams whose courses they follow to winter quarters in Bolinas and other sheltered seaside towns.

Frail, defenseless bodies, delicate, silken wings, microscopic brains—if any, but they know the time and the way.

I wonder if revamping nursery rhymes is going to be an easy task.

Little Miss Perkins sat on some firkins
Eating her rations one day;
A John Lewis spider sat down beside her,
And said he had come there to stay.

GOOD SERVICE COSTS NO MORE

A modern establishment—a trained, intelligent and courteous personnel—distinctive motor equipment and other evidences of progress and prosperity are NOT an indication that funeral service charges will be high. A successful concern can be built only by serving honestly and well, at prices that are fair and reasonable.
